

GIFA Directors' Forum

An Insight into the EU Referendum

Date: 9 June 2016

Venue: Offices of Collas Crill, Gategny Esplanade, St Peter Port

Time: Arrive 8:00 am - 9:30 am

The GIFA Directors Academy would like to extend an invitation to all Executive and Non-Executive Directors to an interactive discussion with The Royal Bank of Scotland Market Strategist Neil Parker.

The discussion will commence at 08:15 and is expected to finish no later than 09:30am

Neil will speak on matters pertaining to the performance of the wider UK economy, including the upcoming EU referendum, the interest rate outlook and also issues impacting the wider global economy and financial markets. He will also aim to cover the upcoming UK Presidential Elections and what the Federal Reserve might do on monetary policy, as well as sharing his thoughts on Euroland, the European Central Bank monetary policy and where the global economy may be heading, given problems in China, Asia and Latin America. Neil will also attempt to address some of the issues that these global factors may present more locally.

About the Speaker

Neil joined RBS Global Banking and Markets having graduated from Essex University with a BA (Hons) in Economics and a MA in International Economics and has 21 years experience in analysing financial markets and economies. In his role within research Neil worked for Marian Bell, who went on to serve a full term on the Bank of England's Monetary Policy Committee.

Neil's current focus is on the G10 economies, foreign exchange and interest rate markets. In his current role, Neil attends many client events presenting views on the UK/Global economy and financial matters.

As there will be limited availability, we politely request that if you register and then are unable to make the event, please advise
